Profile This! Robert Davi Becomes Certified Diver

One of the latest high profile celebrities to receive open water scuba certification is Robert Davi, star of the highly rated NBC TV program, Profiler. The popular actor, who has appeared in such films as Die Hard, License to Kill and Showgirls, earned his PADI Open Water cer-tification earlier this year and then celebrated by traveling to The Bahamas for some pleasure diving.

In conjunction with his scuba certification, Davi convinced the writers of Profiler to incorporate scuba diving into Davi's character, Baily Malone. The result? An Open Water certificate hangs on the set of the show. The writers are currently contemplating some scuba related storylines. 🐟 Competitive freediving received some special international exposure earlier this year when U.S. Champion freediver Mehgan Heaney-Grier appeared on the syndicated television program, Baywatch.

Appearing as herself on the episode entitled, "Shallow Water Blackout," Heaney-Grier worked with series star David Chokachi to present some of the challenges and rewards of competitive freediving. Heaney-Grier, who has set several U.S. freediving records, is currently in training for her next record attempt scheduled for later this year. 🐟
